

TELLTALE SIGNS THAT THERE'S A CHILD MOLESTER IN YOUR AREA.

Child molesters are out there. In your parks. Around your neighborhoods. Any place where children are found. There are more than 400,000 sex offenders in this country – and those are just the ones we know about. The ones who are registered by law. In our experience, the best way to reduce the risks to your children is to know the potential dangers. And at the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children, we know them well. Since 1984, we've handled 1.7 million calls requesting a variety of services for victims and their families, as well as for schools, communities and law enforcement organizations. To report child sexual exploitation, call the police. Then call us at 1-800-843-5678 or contact us at www.cybertipline.com. Know the signs. Look out for child molesters. Because they're certainly on the lookout for your children.
