May 27, 2025

Dear Secretary McMahon and SBA Administrator Loeffler,

We, the undersigned elected and appointed chief prosecutors, line prosecutors, heads of state prosecutor associations, and prosecutorial staff, are joining the National District Attorneys Association (NDAA) to express our strong support for preserving the Public Service Loan Forgiveness (PSLF) and Income-Driven Repayment (IDR) programs. As members of law enforcement and dedicated public servants committed to justice, we recognize these programs are not simply financial relief measures - they are vital tools for maintaining public safety.

PSLF and IDR programs enable experienced and dedicated prosecutors and their staff to continue serving their communities without undo financial hardship forcing them out of public service. It's crucial to emphasize that PSLF and IDRs are not broad loan cancellation initiatives; rather, they require significant, long-term commitment. Prosecutors eligible for PSLF and IDRs must serve in public roles for at least 10 years while making 120 timely payments. PSLF is a clear, powerful agreement: dedicate your career to public service and law enforcement, often at considerable and financial sacrifice, and your community will support you in return.

Across the nation, prosecutor offices are experiencing an unprecedented retention crisis. In rural America, it is not uncommon for one or two attorneys to manage hundreds of serious cases. Prosecutors are leaving their positions – not due to a loss of passion, but because financial pressures leave them no choice. This troubling trend translates directly into fewer cases prosecuted, prolonged delays, and in some instances, crimes going unprosecuted entirely. Without sustained support through PSLF and IDRs, these trends will accelerate.

Effective support for the criminal justice system requires comprehensive backing at every stage. Even the most thorough law enforcement investigations are meaningless without skilled prosecutors to bring cases to court and ensure accountability.

If we fail to adequately support prosecutor recruitment and retention, the consequences are more than administrative – they present serious risks to public safety. We will witness fewer prosecutions of fentanyl trafficking cases, mounting backlogs in violent crime prosecutions, and victims enduring increasingly lengthy waits for justice.

Preserving PSLF and IDRs is essential to retaining experienced prosecutors, particularly in underserved communities most in need of consistent and effective legal representation.

Prosecutors choose this career because of their unwavering belief in justice. However, that commitment cannot withstand the overwhelming burden of student debt indefinitely. We strongly urge this administration to safeguard and enhance PSLF and IDRs – not merely for the benefit of prosecutors, but for the security and stability of our communities. By investing in those who uphold the rule of law, we ensure they can continue to invest in us.

Thank you for your urgent attention to this matter, which directly affects public safety nationwide. We welcome further dialogue on the importance of PSLF and IDRs and would be pleased to provide additional insights into how these programs support justice and community security.

Sincerely,

Alabama:
