Webinar: Health Safety for Prosecutors and Court Staff

Date: April 13, 2020

Time: 2 - 3:00 pm EDT

While many individuals are moving to remote work, some prosecutors and court staff are still being asked to attend court hearings and proceedings in person. During this time, it is crucial for individuals who must continue to work outside their homes to understand how to properly protect themselves and their families. On Monday, April 13, 2020 from 2:00-3:00 p.m. EDT, CNA and the National District Attorneys Association (NDAA) will host a webinar on Health Safety for Prosecutors and Court Staff. This webinar will provide an overview of health safety recommendations for COVID-19 and discuss how these safety recommendations apply in a court room setting.

The webinar will be in an interactive questions and answer format, featuring Nelson Bunn, Executive Director of NDAA, and Eric Trabert, Director and Chief Scientist of CNA's Center for Public Health Preparedness and Resilience. To ensure that we are addressing your concerns, please share any specific health and safety topics that you would like addressed during the webinar (e.g., specific questions on maintaining your health and safety while being at work or attending court proceedings during these trying times). Please enter your questions when you register for the webinar.

Nelson Bunn

Since November 2017, Nelson has served as the Executive Director of NDAA, having previously served 3 years as NDAA's Director of Government Affairs with comprehensive experience across Congress, federal agencies, and the criminal justice system stakeholder community. Prior to that, Nelson served as the Director of Government Affairs for The Charles Group in Washington, DC, where among other clients, he represented the Major County Sheriffs of America (MCSA), an organization representing elected sheriffs from counties with populations over 500,000 people and collectively representing over 100 million Americans.

Nelson also brings federal agency experience as he spent time in the Science and Technology Directorate at the Department of Homeland Security. With that experience, he brings insight into crisis response programs and emerging technologies in the first responder community.

Eric Trabert

Mr. Trabert serves as Director and Chief Scientist of the Center for Public Health Preparedness and Resilience. He provides strategic leadership for CNA's public health practice and is responsible for business development and project execution. He is an expert in all-hazards preparedness with a focus on medical surge and mass casualty incident response.

Trabert has 20 years of experience conducting research and analysis on public health and health care policy and operations. He has evaluated the public health and medical responses to more than a dozen emergencies, including active shooter incidents, the 2014-2016 Ebola virus disease (EVD) epidemic, 2010 Haiti earthquake, 2009 H1N1 influenza pandemic, Hurricanes Katrina and Rita, and 2004 ricin poisonings.

We want to hear from you! If you would like to submit questions or have other concerns, please email us at covid19_courts@cna.org.
